For the TELEMUNDO TALK SHOW, see El Y Ella (TV series). El Y Ella is a short story written by Miguel Mihura about the first person: Adam and Eve. Giving a new twist to the myth of common creation from the book of Genesis, the author writes a parody that incorporates new characters and a new ending. Initiated by El Amigo de El Y Ella, this new version begins with Adam and Eve angry and upset because © They are not alone in the garden, there is another man who accompanies them to heaven, Don Jeronimo. This unexpected quest is described as wearing pajamas and having a frequent moustache. Although the title translates directly to his friend and her, Don Jeronimo is perceived as a nuisance to both Adam and Eve until © Not swons Eve and then the bride. In every culture there is a kind of degree with which people agree to describe the reality of the world. The plot is angry and angry that they are not alone in heaven, Adam and Eve are accompanied by another man with big mustaches wearing pajamas. Every day this man, Don Jeronimo, greets the two very cordially and tries to make friends with them. Although Don Jeronimo's intentions are only to become friends with Adam and Eve, they cannot help but feel angry because © Heaven was only meant for the two of us. Don Jeronimo owns a hotel and has cows that tend to, all that irritates Adam and Eve more. One day, Don Jeronimo asks them if there are others who live in heaven and answer saying no and that they are the first people. He congratulates them and invites Adam and Eve to dinner. The meeting between the three did not seem right, the image was not meant to be painted with the three, but rather only Adam and Eve and the snake. To Adam and Eve, heaven was ruined; The with the mustache they had had their plans. However, as Adam and Eve began to spend more time with Don Jeronimo, little by little he began to enjoy his jokes. They saw that he was a kind and generous man and so the three of them were happy to be in each other's company. Don Jeronimo asked Adam and Eve if they were married. Not knowing how to answer and unaware of what it meant, they replied by saying no. Don Jeronimo followed up to ask if they were brother and sister, Adam and Eve replied of themselves, they were brother and sister. A thought then came into Don Jeronimo's mind. She started telling Eve other jokes to impress her and also gave her some of her cows. He told her he loved her and they got married. They had children who, as they grew up, created more noise and chaos in Heaven. Although Adam respected Don Jeronimo, he and the snake began to feel anger, because © They realized that Paradise would never be what it was. There was nothing else to say or do, change was inevitable. History and analysis The author presents to the public a humorous version of the myth of creation from the Book of Genesis, Adam and Eve. Miguel Mihura is a playwright. When he was young, he loved the theatre and could imagine a different life through his plays. He is considered one of the best comedians in the Spanish theatre of the 20th century because © He has learned to balance comic and absurd language. His story El Amigo de El Y Ella was published in the 1942. He wrote this story during the post-war era; Its history has helped to improve the morale of the Spanish people. Along with this piece, Mihura's other works usually incorporate a strange character that adds a twist to history. Fear Miguel Mihura in the version of Adam and Eve focuses on the theme that sometimes there are some plans that change unexpectedly and we can do nothing about it. Even though Adam and Eve didn't have To have a guest walk them into the garden, there was nothing they could do to change it. Don Jeronimo was there to stay. Stay. Even though he married Eva and their children created other chaos in Paradise, there was nothing left to do. Change was inevitable and others must adapt accordingly.
